INTRODUCTION

Fear/Afraid

An unpleasant feeling real or imagined.

Due to military orders and employment opportunities following my military retirement, (though returning for occasional business purposes), I lived more than 40 years away from America.

I went to the British Protectorate of Hong Kong in 1976. For 21 years, I lived in an Asian, British controlled environment. Because it was a protectorate, the British were only able to make unobtrusive civil laws. Hong Kong people enjoyed the protection and lifestyle of English citizens. There was no civil oppression by the British, nor personal fears by the citizens of Hong Kong. Hong Kong was a very peaceful, prosperous place to live.

In 1997, with the promise that Hong Kong was to retain its Western, democratic government, and lifestyle for fifty additional years, it was peacefully returned to the lawful sovereignty of the People's Republic of China (PRC). The ensuing years have continued to be happy, peaceful, and prosperous. Apart from a brief anxiety concern about the change of government styles, life in Hong Kong continued peaceful. There were no longer fears by the people. The Hong Kong people soon embraced the return to the Motherland of China and authority of the PRC government. Life in Asia continued to be enjoyable. The change causes us no anxiety.

In 2008, my wife decided that she wanted to return to America to be with our children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. She physically moved to Virginia in 2009. I remained along in Hong Kong. In 2011 my wife experiences a crippling medical episode. To be with her, I began to make more frequent visits to America.

I began to sense a tone of fear in society. Americans were afraid to speak freely; afraid to answer their telephones; afraid to go to certain neighborhoods; afraid of their neighbors. Afraid of being afraid.

The word “can’t” be frequently heard, such as, you can’t do that; they won’t allow you to do that; we can’t speak to them.

After living for more than 40 years of peaceful coexistence with my friends and neighbors, this pervasive atmosphere of fear became an overwhelming, persistent, everyday emotion to me.

It is a very unpleasant condition. I became afraid of being afraid.

I soon felt a call to action. Something had to be done to break this American, emotional affliction (distress).

I was brought up in a bi-racial, Christian home. There was family love through all colors, all branches of my relatives. Love was our bylaw.

In the eight decades of my life, I had experienced life to the fullest. I felt was well equipped, I had the time and desire to service my country. To do what I could to dispel hate and restore love to our country.

In May 2023, I decided to enter the campaign for the 2024 United States Presidential election.

Although I hold my personal religious belief extremely private, I consider myself a Christian. Love is my guiding principle in life. The Bible tells us that.

I am an American Patriot. I am prepared to defend my country against all enemies, foreign and domestic. The Constitution is my most powerful weapon.

THE BIBLE

One would think that three thousand years ago was a different world, but the scholars and wise men of that time felt it necessary to set down in writing, reminders to people on how, we as Christians should live with, love, and respect each other.

Those blessed words remain valid across time.

FIVE important commands of the TEN COMMANDMENTS

- Thou shalt not KILL
- Thou shalt not COVET
- Thou shalt not BEAR FALSE WITNESS
- Thou shalt not STEAL
- Keep the SABBATH Day holy

As Christians we should keep his Commandments; love God;
Serve others.
